

Window treatments

Different types of curtain arrangements serve both a functional and a visual purpose in your home. Visually they can enhance your style or change a room's proportions. Functionally, curtains and blinds block light, create privacy and absorb sound. They can also help to make your home cool or warm. Curtains and blinds also provide shade which protects furniture and creates a comfortable temperature for plants and animals. With layers of different types of curtains, you can transform your window into a cosy and constantly changing view. It's beauty with practical features. Let these solutions guide you to the everyday escape you want.

GOOD TO KNOW

When it comes to windows, one size does not fit all. Windows are built in different ways. And we all have different needs regarding curtains. Part of the secret to creating truly beautiful, simple solutions in several layers is to measure your window properly.

1. The width of your window

Determine the width of your curtain rod or track rail. Add at least 15 cm on each side so that the curtains properly cover your window and can be opened completely. If you intend to set up blinds, it's a good idea to add a couple of centimetres to the width of the blinds so that they overlap the window frame and completely block the light.

2. Length of your curtains

Measure from the upper part of the window frame and stop where you want the curtains to end. As a rule of thumb, add 15 cm to the size. Fit the curtain rod or track rail 15 cm above the window frame.

PRIVACY

We love to see what's outside, but sometimes we want to shut out things like sunlight and curious eyes. With curtains and blinds you don't have to choose. They allow you to filter the light, create privacy and reduce the glare on television and computer screens while allowing you to enhance your style.

- The curtains let the light through but provide privacy so they are perfect to use in a layered window solution.
- The blind lowers the general light level and provides privacy by preventing people outside from seeing directly into the room.
- If you have a wider window you can join two or more curtain rod sets with the included connecting

SAFETY

How safe are your windows?

It's probably a question you've not asked yourself that often, and if you have, you've probably thought about the risks of someone falling out or the glass breaking. But the truth is that the area around your window can be a threat, especially for young children. Did you know that blinds and curtains with hanging strings are actually a strangulation risk for children?

For us, children are the most important people in the world, so we work hard to make homes safer. For us, it's not enough to minimise the risk. We want to remove it completely. So we decided to change our range of blinds and curtains by developing alternative solutions that completely eliminate the risk of strangulation.

To prevent children from getting stuck in loose strings, we've removed the drawstring from all of our blinds. They are still easy to roll up and pull down – just grab the plastic tab in the middle and pull. For high windows, you easily complete with RIKTIG draw rod. The blinds can be adjusted to any height.

And our curtains have no drawstring, which means children stay safe around them.
