

A collection by WSL and IKEA. Made for high vibes and low impact.

IKEA has teamed up with the World Surf League (WSL) to better understand the everyday life of people living in sync with the ocean. No sport relies on open waters as much as surfing, and therefore protecting it comes naturally.

Together with former pro surfers Rob Machado, Kassia Meador and +3500 other surfers, IKEA has created a collection of products that address everyday needs of surfers and global challenges of our planet.

By connecting sustainability with an active life, we aim to inspire people to help fight plastic pollution and choose renewable and recycled materials — or, as Kassia puts it: high vibes and low impact.

First things first, why is a company known for furniture making a surf collection?

IKEA is a curious and innovative company, and we're always looking for new partnerships that support our vision of creating a better everyday life for the many people.

So to better understand people that have a mobile and active life in close rhythm with the ocean, we teamed up with World Surf League (WSL). Established in 1976, they are the global home of surfing and are dedicated to positively impacting the world. By creating events, experiences, and story-driven content, they inspire a growing community of ocean enthusiasts, the world's best surfers, and their fans.

Today, there are 370 million people across the world interested in surfing and more than 40 million active surfers. And since the sport, quite naturally, takes place in open waters, surfers are generally passionate about tackling environmental challenges such as reducing plastic pollution in the oceans.

“Well, IKEA knows how to make lives better at home. At the same time, they’re also concerned with this planet that we all call home. Surfers have an inherent connection to nature, so who better for IKEA to partner with than the WSL? Though an IKEA X WSL collaboration may seem like an unlikely pairing, it actually makes a lot of sense.”

Meet the designers

To ensure our collection addressed real needs of real surfers and ocean lovers, we brought renowned surfers Kassia Meador & Rob Machado into the heart of our design process.

“IKEA’s longtime approach to sustainable design plus Rob and Kassia’s vast experience in living as surfers make for a collection that is not only sustainable, but also functional. Most importantly, it is authentic to the surf community at a price people can afford.”

Kassia Meador

California born and bred, Kassia Meador began surfing at age 14. And just three years later, she was a sponsored pro-longboarder travelling the world. Known for her graceful surf style, she was crowned the "queen of noseriding" by the New York Times. In 2015, she launched KASSIA+SURF, a brand for women by women that focuses on planet conscious solutions with designs rooted in authenticity gained through 23 years of surf experience.

"To me, 'high vibe low impact' is beautiful design, super cool visual aesthetics, great functionality, and then low impact. Like: Hey! We're taking plastics out of the ocean, and we're not polluting waterways, and we're inspiring people that it's possible."

Rob Machado

Rob Machado is one of the world's most recognizable surfers as well as a committed environmentalist. Known for his zen-like flow, both on land and in the water, Machado earned 12 WCT victories before being inducted into the Surfing Hall of Fame in 2000. In 2004, he established the Rob Machado Foundation to educate and empower young people to make sustainable choices.

"Since my son was born, I've taken him to the beach. Around a year ago, I saw him start picking up trash. I didn't ask him to; he just started doing exactly what I did. This made me think that it's just all about leading by example, right? If you can show people a good way to do things, they will just naturally do it."

The collection addresses the needs and wants of a healthy, sustainable and mobile everyday life — in and around water.

The products are made from renewable and recycled materials and are designed for people who embrace the surfer's mindset, regardless of whether they ride waves or not.

High Vibes & Low Impact

While most of the products in the collection are made for everyone, a few were designed specifically for surfers. Take the Surf bag as an example: Inspired by the iconic bag FRAKTA — which is already a favourite among surfers due to its durability and water resistance — it takes functionality to another level. By adding additional inserts, a dedicated space for wet items, and a double bottom that lets you change standing in the bag — and just let the wetsuit drop down — the iconic bag is now more tailored for surfers than ever before.

On the other hand, some products were designed to nurture sustainable living. The KÅSEBERGA trash bag is made from ocean-bound plastic to help keep both beaches and oceans clean. It's reusable, easy to bring around and most importantly: helps spread the message.

Co-created with +3500 surfers

To make sure we tackled real needs, more than 3500 surfers were brought into our process. From Brazil, Japan, Sweden, and Hawaii, they gave design input, conducted research, and tested prototypes. Among other products, this led to the creation of a versatile indoor boardholder and a surf-inspired backpack.

The thinking behind the designs with Kassia Meador and Wiebke Braasch

KÅSEBERGA water bottle

"Water is life and is vital for your health, but plastic bottles ruin our environment. That's why we wanted to create a durable bottle that you can refill again and again. The result is KÅSEBERGA water bottle in stainless steel. It holds 1 litre, is simple to carry and has a shape that makes it easy to grip and drink from. We hope it will be a given part many people's everyday lives, including yours, so we can together have a positive impact on the climate – and our oceans."

KÅSEBERGA bath poncho

"Changing at the beach can be challenging. That's why we decided to create something cool that makes changing clothes easier. The result is the spacious KÅSEBERGA bath poncho with a hood and holes in the kangaroo pocket that you can stick your hands through when changing. Easy to roll up and put in your backpack. The soft, warming cotton terry is nice to crawl into after a refreshing swim or shower at home. We hope you love it as much as we do."

KÅSEBERGA bag

"Our main idea with KÅSEBERG bag was to create something that could make it both easy and fun to pick up litter at the beach, but of course you can use it for whatever you like. It's lightweight, easy to fold up and takes up little space. It's also made of mesh fabric so that sand can flow through. We really hope that the bag inspires more people to pick up litter – and that they in turn can inspire more to do the same. This planet needs help from all of us."

KÅSEBERGA bag (FRAKTA)

"We know that many surfers use our well-known blue bag to carry their gear and stand in when changing in order to protect the wetsuit from sand. KÅSEBERGA bag can be used in the same ways, but we've upgraded it with a reinforced bottom, cool colours and 2 removeable compartments – 1 that's open and 1 with a handle and zipper that you can use as a bag if you want to pop out of the sun and go buy snacks. We hope that it makes beach life easier for both surfers and families."

The thinking behind the designs with Rob Machado and Mikael Axelsson

KÅSEBERGA handplane for body surfing

“The whole idea with KÅSEBERGA handplane was to make surfing so easy that everyone can throw themselves over waves and have fun. The simple yet effective shape makes it possible to glide on the water with just your body. And if you live far from the ocean, we still hope that the board finds a place in your home with its soft and decorative shapes – and awaken a dream of one day experiencing the magical feeling of gliding weightlessly over the water.”

KÅSEBERGA pegboard bamboo

“Surfing is a lifestyle and avid surfers always want to be ready for the next wave. KÅSEBERGA pegboard makes it easy to have everything close at hand – the surfboard, keys and a bath poncho. Putting up several boards also gives you space for hats, caps and backpacks. Both the consoles and shelves can be moved, so you can easily adapt the pegboard to the changing needs of you and your family. And it’s a great added bonus that everything is made of durable and natural bamboo.”

KÅSEBERGA yoga mat

“We wanted to create something that could inspire people to take care of their health and well-being. The result is KÅSEBERGA yoga mat in pure natural materials – soft cork closest to the body and rubber on the underside to keep it in place. So decorative that you can have it on display. Who knows, maybe you can persuade friends to join on a workout, whether it’s yoga, sit-ups or push-ups. If this mat can inspire even one person to start exercising, we’ve succeeded.”

Paddling on

At IKEA, we want to support long-lasting societal changes towards living within the limits of the planet. The KÅSEBERGA collection has helped us explore different opportunities with a community that already has a conscious and sustainable way of living.

Their passion for making a positive change for the things they love has been an inspiration for all of us at IKEA. Imagine if all people saw nature from a surfer's perspective? And would translate that view into their own world, even if they are not surfers themselves?
