WELCOME TO APRIL AT IKEA

This month we're proud to introduce products that help bring nature indoors and reconnect with the senses. The materials are natural and the colours are warm and earthy; it's about embracing imperfections and making room for nature and relaxation. Fitting perfectly within the Blurred Boundaries trend identified by IKEA for this spring and summer, April News blends the boundary between indoor and outdoor furniture.

Among the highlights are products for a truly natural bedroom. A new bedframe, bedside table and chest of drawers are made of solid, renewable birch that's sourced to strict standards. This is in line with our goal of only using wood from more sustainable sources by 2020. Complement the bedframe with our new range of mattresses and mattress pads made with organic materials for a healthy sleep environment.

Another big piece of news is a modular storage system that optimises the space throughout the home. Also this spring, the living room welcomes a new sectional sofa, pouffes and a tray table. For the kitchen, there's an open wall storage system that makes cooking easier, along with a worktop and tap. Children can delight in two new textile collections that pay tribute to the endangered species of the world. Of course, there are also the softer items for the home, and small decoration pieces

SANDARED POUFFES

Designed to make life in the living room more flexible, we're introducing SANDARED pouffes. This series of designed knitted pouffes can be used as decorative occasional seats, stylish footstools and comfortable floor cushions. They're available in three different sizes and coloured covers that can be easily removed and washed.

FRIDAFORS TRAY TABLE

For the many changing needs at home, we've developed FRIDAFORS tray table. Use it as a coffee table or bedside table, move to another room, or stack it away. As functional as it is beautiful in blue, it's the removable tray and foldable legs that make it such a flexible table. It can be assembled quickly and easily thanks to parts that click together and pre-drilled holes. The table legs are made from rubberwood from responsibly managed forests. Instead of letting the wood become firewood, we use it for furniture – and take better care of the planet's resources by doing so.

VIDEBÄK RUG

Every VIDEBÄK rug has a unique design similar to a piece of art. Woven with great craftsmanship, it comes from our initiative of handwoven rugs in India and Bangladesh. The irregular pattern has been woven in 100% wool in a way that can't be replicated by machines – making every rug truly different from each other. The weavers creating VIDEBÄK rug, as well as our other handmade rugs from India and Bangladesh, use a new, improved loom. This is the result of a development done by IKEA making the loom more ergonomic and require less strength to use than a traditional loom. This is all part of our commitment to organised weaving centres with good working conditions, fair wages, stable work and care for the environment.

GULVED BEDSPREAD

The two-sided GULVED bedspread can be used to vary the look of the bed. The dark-blue bedspread is made with linen on the top side and cotton on the other. Choosing linen as part of the bedspread has been a conscious choice for its environmental benefits. Linen is a renewable and biodegradable fibre that uses less energy, less water and less fertilisers when cultivated. But the good choices don't stop there. The wadding inside the bedspread is made with 95% recycled PET – it's all part of our mission to make sustainable choices available for the many!

JOFRID CUSHION COVER & THROW

Not only are JOFRID throws and cushion covers made of cotton and linen, both natural materials, but they've been dyed in a more natural way. We revived an old tradition of dyeing with the help of nature's colours in order to reduce the environmental impact. This is part of a pioneering project at IKEA utilising a completely new way of dyeing textiles using agricultural waste products – like leaves, nutshells and orange peel that would otherwise be thrown out. These have given rise to natural and bluish tones that will only become more beautiful with wear and tear. Material expert at IKEA, Catherine Larsson, explains further:

"I heard of the new method and found it interesting for us. Textile dyes are usually oil-based, but the dye we use for JOFRID is instead based on completely natural and renewable resources that look like and function in the same way as chemical dyes. We've started on a small scale, but aim to develop this and other projects as soon as we can."

By using nature's own dyes, it means that we can create beautiful textiles with long lifespans while being kinder to the environment. We aim to develop this and use it more in the future.

HIDRASUND POCKET SPRING MATTRESS TISTEDAL MATTRESS PAD

This month we're introducing a new range of natural mattresses and mattress pads with organic materials designed for a healthy sleep environment. For example, the HIDRASUND pocket sprung mattress is made of natural latex, coconut fibre, cotton, wool and lyocell that provide extra comfort and draw away moisture, giving a pleasant sleeping climate with a cool and even temperature. The bottom layer of the mattress uses coconut fibre, a waste product from the food industry, which helps provide good ventilation and sleep comfort. With five different comfort zones, the mattress offers precise support and relief of pressure on shoulders and hips — and comes with a 25-year guarantee.

Complement with the TISTEDAL mattress pad that increases sleeping comfort and extends the life of the mattress. Its natural latex filling with high pressure gives greater relaxation.

BJÖRKNÄS COLLECTION

Combining Scandinavian birch with a design that breathes simplicity is the essence of BJÖRKNÄS collection, which now includes a bed frame, bedside table and chest of drawers. The designers Knut Hagberg and Marianne Hagberg share their ideas behind the collection:

"The inspiration for BJÖRKNÄS collection comes from our Scandinavian roots and from the reality of everyday life. The neat and airy look is characterised by natural materials with fine carpentry details and proportions that make the furniture fit in many rooms. These are classic and freestanding products created to last a long time and to survive the ever-changing world of interior design. Practical and with a simplistic design idiom which is typically Scandinavian."

All pieces are designed with rounded shapes and well-chosen materials like solid wood with leather details. At IKEA, our wood is sourced according to strict standards and by 2020 all our wood will come from more sustainable sources – meaning either FSC®-certified or recycled wood.

For a traditional-styled kitchen, GAMLESJÖN tap makes a fine design feature with its industrial look made of brushed black metal. The bolt-shaped knobs add to its style, as well as the high spout which also makes it easier to wash larger pots that take up a lot of room around the sink. SKOGSÅ WORKTOP

With a unique butcher block look, SKOGSÅ worktop in oak adds warmth and style to the kitchen. It's made with a thin layer technique where a three-millimetre solid wood surface is placed on particle board. This gives a durable worktop with a high resistance to bending or cracking when humidity changes. Plus, it's easy to maintain and can be sanded down to remove any scratches or stains. Apart from the benefits in the kitchen, the thin layer technique requires less raw material than a solid worktop as it uses 100% of the tree instead of using only the stem. SKOGSÅ worktop is available as pre-cut and custom-made and, like our entire worktop range, comes with a 25-year guarantee.

KUNGSFORS WALL SYSTEM & ACCESSORIES

Inspired by chefs, but adapted for the home, we're now introducing KUNGSFORS wall system for an industrial-styled kitchen with open storage. It's been developed in collaboration with the Swedish top chef Maximillian Lundin, who knows a lot about cooking in a home environment and has contributed to making kitchen times as smooth as possible through the new system:

"A home kitchen is of course not the same as a restaurant kitchen. But there are a lot of practical things to be learnt from a restaurant kitchen. Like having utensils and ingredients easily accessible so that you have a good flow when cooking, and have plenty of space on the kitchen worktop."

And just like in a restaurant kitchen, we've focused on durable materials and smart wall storage that frees up space on the worktop for all creative home cooks.

Consisting of rails for installation, wooden and stainless-steel shelves, storage grids, a magnetic knife holder, storage containers, hooks and magnetic clips, KUNGSFORS wall system and accessories can be installed either as solitaire pieces or using the rails to build sections and install many items within a set of rails. It's a flexible system that works for kitchens of all sizes, and really puts kitchen walls to work in a very efficient way.

HATTEFJÄLL SWIVEL CHAIR

The HATTEFJÄLL swivel chair is deliberately different. When designer Monika Mulder was asked to challenge the norm of a work chair from a design perspective, she created something human, feminine and elegant.

"We wanted people to look twice at the chair, to turn around," Monika says. "HATTEFJÄLL has a very subtle waist. It indicates lower back support and brings in ergonomic and emotional comfort."

With IKEA's ergonomic expertise, the chair has been made to support all physical needs. With the possibility to adjust the back height and seat depth, it's designed so all different body types can find the ideal sitting position.

Tested for office use, the chair has been swivelled hundreds of times, tilted, pushed, rolled, burned and even had weights dropped on it to make sure it meets industrial standards. HATTEFJÄLL swivel chair has details like perfectly rounded corners with no fabric bunching. With its modernistic shape, it looks more like an armchair than a work chair — adding softness to create a homelier workspace.

AN IKEA FIRST: ENEBY SPEAKERS

Sound, just like light, is an important part of creating atmosphere. Music and sound complete the home, giving it soul. That's why we've turned our attention to sound and are launching the first speakers at IKEA. ENEBY speakers are Bluetooth® connected and come in a sleek design making them beautiful accessories. Available in two sizes and colours, they can be mounted on the stands or wall brackets that are sold separately, or placed in KALLAX or EKET storage systems. The small speaker has a handle so it can be hung on a hook or taken along to a party or picnic, as it's possible to add a battery pack to it. There's really nothing to stop music from being part of the home, any time. It's time to furnish with sound.

TROLLAKULLA LAMP SHADES

With roaring tigers or exotic birds, TROLLAKULLA lamp shades light up the kid's room. Designed in the same jungle theme as DJUNGELSKOG and URSKOG collections, these lamp shades make the room shine bright in a more fun way. They should be used together with SINNRİK cord set with a bulb protector that shields the light source from breaking, so it doesn't matter if playtimes get wild – it's completely safe for both footballs and toy swords!

DJUNGELSKOG COLLECTION

We created the DJUNGELSKOG collection to highlight the beautiful wild animals throughout the world which are endangered. Designed for 3-7 year olds, the animals in the collection make wonderful friends to play with. IKEA also cares about animals and the environment, and we work with various initiatives. For example, as far back as the 1980s when a forest fire in Borneo destroyed a lot of rainforest, IKEA stepped in to help. As Martin Petri, who works with sustainability at IKEA, explains:

“When Ingvar Kamprad, founder of IKEA, heard about the forest fire he wanted to contribute to the restoration of the rainforest. That’s why, since 1998, we’ve financed the project Sow a seed which has led to more than 12,500 hectares of rainforest being replanted.”

With the replanting, the orangutan and other magnificent rainforest animals could return to their habitats.

It also feels good to know that many of the patterns in DJUNGELSKOG collection are printed with a pigment print, which skips a large washing step during production, and reduces water consumption by 30-40% compared with the reactive printing technique. Printed on materials such as lyocell and cotton from more sustainable sources, the collection is for lovers of both our planet and the jungle.

STRANDMON CHILDREN'S ARMCHAIR

Children love to mimic adults, and is an important part of their development, helping them to make sense of the world. So, it's no surprise that when we adapted our POÄNG armchair for children, it was so appreciated. Now it's time for our classic STRANDMON armchair. But making a children's version isn't just about shrinking the size of the adult chair, says Product Developer Nicolas Cortolezzis.

"Children do not have the same proportions as adults and they don't sit like we do. They move around and like to put their feet up, which is why we made a fixed seat instead of having a loose cushion as the adult version."

Nicolas and his team worked a lot with safety and ergonomics to make it stable and welcoming to sit-as-you-like. Just like its parent, STRANDMON children's armchair will stand daily wear and tear, and has a more resistant fabric. This is a must when the armchair is not only a place to sit, but sometimes used as a desert island or the world's highest mountain!

Among other things, the legs of STRANDMON children's armchair are positioned differently so the centre of gravity is adapted to how children use the armchair.

URSKOG COLLECTION

Designed for 8-12 year olds, URSKOG collection continues the theme of DJUNGELSKOG collection, paying tribute to the world's endangered species. The tiger, panda and other wild animals are found on quilt covers, towels and more.

For Product Developer Anna Edlundh and her colleagues it's a given to choose materials and production methods that are neither harmful to children nor our environment.

"It felt particularly good that we use materials such as the cellulose fibre called lyocell, cotton from more sustainable sources and polyester made from recycled plastic," says Anna.

PRINTING THAT SAVES WATER

Just like DJUNGELSKOG collection, the textiles in URSKOG collection are printed with a pigment print that offers great environmental benefits. For example, for a single duvet cover with a pillow case at least 30 litres of water can be saved!

All the cotton in our products can be traced back all the way to the farmers. It's a guarantee that the cotton actually comes from a more sustainable production.
