IKEA Canada celebrates 40 YEARS of design.
Living proof of timeless design

The POÄNG armchair from IKEA is also turning 40 this year. Celebrating four decades of style, comfort and choice. To mark the occasion, we’re introducing one new frame colour and six new covers to the existing range of combinations.
Then & Now

For 40 years IKEA has continued to reinvent itself with iconic designs that inspires generation after generation of Canadians. Let’s celebrate 40 years of timeless design and innovation by bringing the IKEA products and catalogues of the past together with this year’s design.

The 40th Anniversary Catalogue is here.
This year’s IKEA Catalogue is a little bit different

We’re proud of our IKEA values. So proud that this year’s IKEA Catalogue comes with 13 feature stories that show what our values are all about – from an everyday perspective. It’s our way of sharing some of the principles that guide us.

But it’s not just through the stories that we connect to IKEA values. Our values are expressed throughout the entire 2017 IKEA Catalogue – through the different home furnishing solutions and in the selected products that we proudly present. Many stories and solutions are also examples of how important it is to take every day and every meeting with a customer as a chance to listen, learn and improve. Coming from this, the introduction to the IKEA Catalogue came naturally.
The biggest news this year!

13 feature stories that show the many faces of IKEA in the real world. From freestyle cooking in a student dorm in the US, to how we try to reach out to underprivileged children in Eastern Africa.

A totally redesigned and much more inspiring IKEA Catalogue app. For smartphones, tablets, desktops, laptops and – last but not least – connectivity with the latest generation of Apple TV.

NEW APP EXPERIENCE

It isn’t just a digital version of the catalogue, it’s a digital enlargement and enhancement of the catalogue that you can enjoy on your TV at home.

DESIGNED FOR EVERYONE!

At IKEA, design is about much more than how things look. It’s about making things better. We call our approach “Democratic Design”. Design that is beautiful and functional is not for the few, it is for the many.

Every year, we visit homes around the world to find out about people’s needs and dreams so that we can design solutions that make everyday life a little better for everyone. For children who love to cook, for moms who want to de-clutter, and for girlfriends who enjoy breakfast in bed.

So, will you want to buy some of our products after you’ve read this catalogue? Hopefully. Will you look at our products a little bit differently now that you know our beliefs on design? We sure hope so.

Whether this is your 40th IKEA Catalogue or your first, enjoy what’s inside because it’s been made with you in mind.

WHY GOOD DESIGN IS DEMOCRATIC

DEMOCRATIC DESIGN MEANS MAKING FIVE THINGS BETTER.

FORM: To make the world more beautiful.

FUNCTION: To really make everyday life easier and more meaningful.

QUALITY: To make everything last longer and age gracefully.

SUSTAINABILITY: To take responsibility to have an improving impact on people and the planet.

LOW PRICE: To make it affordable for the many people.

By creating products that meet all five dimensions of Democratic Design we will be unique – and have a product range people will love. Democratic Design comes from what we believe in: that everyone has the right to a better everyday life.

IKEA 365+ deep plate/bowl, Designed for people who don’t always eat at the table. Easy to hold with one hand and extra durable thanks to the feldspar porcelain. Excellent to serve from, too.

NORDEN gateleg table, Compact with big possibilities. Seats 1 - 4 people with plenty of storage space in the 6 drawers. If you ask us, it’s clever design at a great price.

The VARDAGEN bowl spout makes a big difference. Thanks to this detail, the pancake batter will end up in the pan and not on the kitchen counter, or on your socks.
Goodbye expectations. Hello you!

A lot of people feel pressured in their everyday life. And very much so when it comes to food and life in and around the kitchen.

In this year’s catalogue, we’ve tried our best to create home furnishing solutions that help people to live a life without negative expectations.

We want to inspire people to unfollow the expectations – care less about people’s opinions – and more about what they want themselves.

If you want to mix and match chairs, do it! If you want to serve a wedding dinner without cutlery, great! It’s about following your own path and listening to your inner voice. It’s about you being you. Period.
COOK LIKE NO ONE’S WATCHING

The appeal of cooking for one is all about perception. You could see it as an inspiration-less chore, something you simply have to do, or, you could see the possibilities – because when you’re one, you can literally do whatever you want. Stay in your pyjamas. Sing a cheesy rock anthem in your loudest voice. Cook with gusto, even if things end up on the floor. It’s about customizing a kitchen just for you, one that inspires you to cook like no one’s watching.
The Dream Dining Area

The dining area is where we gather – to share a meal, tell stories and make grand plans. And it’s important to get it just the way you want it because the atmosphere helps create these moments – big and small.

KALVIA door front patterns are inspired from an abstract painting, creating a unique and exciting effect.

KALVIA ADD-ON FRONT

With open kitchens being more and more popular, it’s a chance to add some character and style to the home using kitchen fronts that work as art. That was the idea when IKEA collaborated with fashion designer and artist Martin Bergström. The result was KALVIA add-on fronts that cover three different motifs from one of his paintings printed directly onto our high-quality kitchen doors in different sizes.
The Swedish Kitchen

There is no place that captures the true character and customs of our homeland better than a Swedish kitchen. Many of the things we value most – being close to nature, eating long meals together, and allowing our kids all over the home – guide how Swedes design their kitchens.
SUNNERSTA Mini-Kitchen

Sometimes installing a large kitchen isn’t necessary, or it’s too expensive and time-consuming. That’s why the SUNNERSTA mini-kitchen was developed. Ideal when living in a small space, this free-standing kitchen meets the needs of customers who want basic kitchen functions with easy installation and at a great price. The designer Henrik Preutz hopes that the new kitchen will make cooking more fun and easier.

GREEN LIVING

People’s desire to live a sustainable life is growing by the hour. To millions of people, a green lifestyle is the only alternative. We love to be part of that movement and come up with products and solutions that help people get started and live in sync with nature. More and more people are also getting increasingly interested in growing their own vegetables or simply bringing more green plants into the home. The 2017 IKEA catalogue has plenty of ideas for all sorts of green living. And not just as decorations, but as an important and soulful part of the home.
Small acts, big change

Most of us are aware of the impact our daily lives can have on the planet, but “being sustainable” feels like a big job. The thing we often forget, though, is that we’re not supposed to do it alone. The key is finding small ways to do our part. Because when we add up these small acts, that’s when the big change really happens.

RINGSKÄR
Water-saving faucets are an easy way to automatically use up to 40% less water. You save water and energy because the faucet has a mechanism that reduces water flow while maintaining pressure.

LEDARE
The LED light source consumes up to 85% less energy and lasts 20 times longer than incandescent bulbs. Changing out regular bulbs for LED versions is an effortless way to make an impact – and lower your electric bill.

VARIERA
VARIERA bins and DIMPA bags help sort your metal, plastic and food waste because if it’s easy to do, you’re more likely to do it.
A Balcony Fit for a Feast

When the air is warm, all we want to do is move outdoors. And it doesn’t require as much room as you might think. Even a small balcony can be turned into a space-efficient spot to prepare and serve a tasty meal.
Food on the Go

Weaving a better future for handmade rugs and the people who make them

Rug weaving in India has a rich history, and nurturing this unique craftsmanship starts with the skilled men and women who make IKEA rugs. Together with our suppliers, we have consolidated weaving into centres with good working conditions, fair wages, stable work and care for the environment. It’s a more sustainable way of producing handmade rugs – one that ensures the well-being of the weavers and their communities, the resources we use, and our business.

Wool is a natural, renewable material. It has many attributes – it is soft, warm, durable and elegant, to name just a few. Wool is also naturally soil repellent and resistant to bacteria. With these remarkable attributes, these rugs will accompany you for many years to come.

Furniture made out of paper. Really?

We try to innovate towards a brighter future. Which, quite often, results in asking unusual questions. Like, could we make furniture out of the same material used to make an egg carton? Or, can recycled, low-cost paper pulp have a role beyond product packaging? Actually, that’s exactly what we asked ourselves, and so the exploration of paper-made furniture began. Yes really, paper.
SHARE A MEAL – ANYWHERE

Our meals have migrated – from the dining table to the sofa, floor and desk. These days, a meal with friends or family doesn’t have to happen around a perfectly-set table. And it doesn’t even have to include chairs. The days of “have to” are over. Go ahead and eat around a coffee table. Sit on the sofa. Or the floor. Because it doesn’t really matter where we eat – just that we get to be together.

The 24-hour Life of a Sofa Bed

As many people migrate to cities, smaller spaces have become the new dream home. And part of the reason is that small is smart. The sofa bed is the heart of this living room, made for socializing as much as snoozing.

MANY LAYERS OF NEWS

The IKEA catalogue has always been about news. New products, new ideas and new ways to look at life at home. However, everyone might not know that IKEA launches new products all year ’round. To highlight that fact and tease people’s interest, we show what we call future news. Things that are just around the corner and will be available soon.

This year, a lot of very exciting news is coming up. Two stunning examples are the new, colourful SÄLLSKAP collection and the long awaited 2017 IKEA PS collection.
News Here,
News There,
News Everywhere

The IKEA Catalogue is packed with news in many different forms. All new products, new colours, new patterns, new materials. And of course, new low prices.

IKEA PS

The way we live today has never been more unpredictable. This creates a need for furniture that’s super smart and mobile, like tables that double as stools, sofas that fold away, or stackable moving boxes that transform into a storage solution. IKEA PS 2017 is as free, fun and flexible as the lifestyles it serves – for homes in all kinds of spaces.

EVERYDAY IKEA

IKEA is an everyday company. Helping people make the most out of Monday mornings and Wednesday afternoons is what we’re all about.

That’s why this year’s catalogue, like many before it, has a strong focus on solutions for the everyday. Like how to live in a small space, how to create a home that follows your rhythm, and how to make sustainability a natural part of life. And of course, how to create homes that prove that children are the most important people in the world.
A Bedroom in Disguise

When your bedroom is the living room, carving out a personal and quiet space of your own becomes even more important. This heart of the home is made for everyone, but cleverly hides away the functionality of a bedroom for one. The cabinet is a wardrobe, the screen a changing room, and the couch a comfortable bed for sleeping in – as long as you don’t mind some company in the morning.

Small Space Living

More and more people move into small homes in big cities. The result is a shortage of space in many parts of the world. That’s why we put a lot of emphasis on showing smart solutions for small spaces. Smart – and affordable. It’s about multifunctional furniture, compact solutions and even rethinking how many things we really need. We want to help people to use their space in new and more exciting ways.

Private Sleep Zones for All

When you live with roommates, it can be hard to find those “me-time” moments. Bookcases and clothing racks affordably divide up the bedroom space and help to make sure alone time is truly your own.
VALLENTUNA Series

Times are changing and these days the living room often needs to work as more than just that. With smaller living spaces, it may need to provide a bed (or more), and extra storage is always attractive. To meet all these needs, we have created our most flexible seating solution so far – VALLENTUNA series. Based on units with the same look, it’s possible to combine modules for seating, sleeping and storage, while also mixing and matching different covers to create a very unique, personal combination. All modules are available in a range of soft covers in mature colours, all removable and water washable. Even the armrests and backrests can be given a different colour – the possibilities of VALLENTUNA series are indeed endless!

THE SLEEP COMFORT OF VALLENTUNA SERIES IS GREAT THANKS TO POCKET SPRINGS AND A MATTRESS PAD, MAKING IT A BED FOR EVERY NIGHT.

Living with Children

It’s wonderful to share your life with children. But it’s demanding too. And you need to think carefully about how to make space for all the activities that children love and need.

We have always thought about children as the most important people in the world. We try to develop ideas, and products, that help them play, study, relax, concentrate or just be.

We want children to be welcome in all parts of the home. Children are just like you and me. Just slightly more interested in why bananas are yellow and why it’s strange to play with the toilet brush.

Designing with Natural Materials

GRÖNADAL ROCKING CHAIR

Traditional Vietnamese handcraft and modern Scandinavian style come together in the GRÖNADAL rocking chair. The chair was produced in a rattan factory in Nha Trang, where IKEA makes many different products as part of helping to create jobs and preserve valuable traditions by working with rattan. The chair is made with an unusual mix of materials in a strong iconic shape. Using a cane weaving technique where rattan is woven directly onto the steel frame, the skilled craftsmen have created a chair that’s both lightweight and easy to move around, and rock in.

RÖDARV cushion & BRUNÖRT cushion covers

NEW coordinated patterns bring a traditional look to the sofa. The designer Eva Lundgren made old Swedish patterns come alive in her designs: “I was inspired by traditional Swedish wool embroidery. I thought about how women in the old days used their plant-dyed yarn to weave and create wonderful textiles by candlelight. How they would pick in wild flowers in the meadows. A old treasure, rich in design and colour that is just as beautiful in our modern homes today.”

Nordic Fruit Water

When it comes to sugar, less is more.

We need to break this trend. Turn it around. This is why, in one bold step, we’re cutting sugar at our drink towers in half.

Also introducing new Nordic fruit water a carbonated fruit water to replace all the existing soft drinks in the restaurant, the bistro and co-worker restaurant.

The sparkling Nordic fruit waters are made with natural colours and flavours, and come in three versions: lemon, pear, and raspberry. Fruit water contains 50% less sugar than our current range of soft drinks, and all new products in the range contain less than 20 calories.

After all, life is sweet enough!
Pulled Salmon Sandwich

The cold range in the IKEA Restaurant is now joined by an exciting dish – the pulled salmon sandwich. This dish has come about from some smart thinking around taking care of all of the prime salmon meat, not just the fillets, which means using more of the fish. The salmon is hot smoked and spices and a BBQ sauce are added for a taste almost like pulled pork – but salmon.

Influenced by street food trends, the pulled salmon comes in a bun with pickled red cabbage and gherkins, as well as a green leaf salad. The result is a spicy dish that’s also sustainable, since all salmon at IKEA is ASC-certified (Aquaculture Stewardship Council).

THE PULLED SALMON SANDWICH IS AN EXCITING NEW DISH WITH A SMOKY BARBECUE TASTE.
